1. Introduction

This document is part of activities within Act 5.4 “Non discipline volunteering of students” - “Document on social engagement of members of academic and scientific community” and provides information on how to monitor and record the volunteering activities of students / academic staff at HEIs. Each HEIs has their own strategic goals, policies and procedures upon which it plans and organizes its volunteering activities and resources, therefore the monitoring and recording of such activities needs to be adopted to ensure that specific requirements have been met.

Social engagement plans of HEI in Serbia, recommend promoting volunteerism and involvement of students and staff at HEIs in socially beneficial actions. The lists of possible indicators for measuring social engagement progress or success in non-discipline specific volunteering (as discussed at partners meeting in Krems in February 2018) are as follows:

- Number of academics involved in non-discipline volunteering activities towards the community/society, in absolute number
- Number of non-academics/technical/administrative staff involved in non-discipline volunteering activities towards the community/society, in absolute number
- Number of students involved in non-discipline volunteering activities towards the community/society, in absolute number
- Number of NGOs benefitting from non-discipline volunteering work inputs from university staff or students. The number of NGOs in which the university staff members or students operate as volunteers.

Considering that within the “Document on social engagement of members of academic and scientific community” as Annexes, detailed tables and entrance and exit questionnaires are provided, HEIs are advised to use them to keep tract of the type of volunteering activities that occur at their HEIs.

It is expected that over the course of the project at least 100 students/academic and non-academic staff will be engaged in non-discipline specific volunteering for the benefit of wider community.
